

The effectiveness of intervention vocational general practice of social work for the development of the awareness of mothers and social risks of child labor program

The problem of the study

Children are the fruits that will be in order to paint a future understanding of men of tomorrow and the future youth as contributing to childhood in the formation of the features of these children and their personality so there is a growing community child-care and provide him with protection and .work to shed light on the problems that hinder the growth and response

Children are the wealth of nations and promised for the future, and child care and care in the aspects of physical, mental and social are very society, the child since birth is influenced by the group in which he lives and plays parents an important role in Giving the child the values, customs and traditions and social norms. In particular, the mother plays an important role in the culture of the community give the child with all .its values, customs and traditions and social norms

The phenomenon of child labor, a social phenomena that have become threaten the security of many countries. There is an increase in international concern over the growing number of working children, especially in developing countries where it is in spite of many related risk factors to work, but there is some evidence on the social, health and psychological they need special working children aged 9–18 years as .reason the key to poverty especially low-income households the importance of studying:

1–This study addresses one of the important phenomena (the phenomenon of child labor, it is a global and a local phenomenon Gahy highlight the rights of one of the important groups in society and that this phenomenon is spreading especially the increase in the current circumstances in society

2–unify the view of researchers and practitioners to pay attention to studying the phenomenon, which helps to curb the phenomenon to prevent their spread, which indicates the importance of social work profession in society and dealing with its problems and pressing issues of society

3–enrich construction cognitive perspectives experimenting with a practice social service and ensure its effectiveness

4–obvious scarcity in private studies and research from the perspective of the general practice of Social Service to deal with the phenomenon of child labor

Objectives of the study:

The study aimed to achieve the following:

1–Measuring return professional intervention general practice of social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of the awareness of mothers and social risks of child labor

2–reach a standardized intervention program vocational general practice of social work for the development of awareness of the mothers of the dangers of child labor after the intervention design and tested the program and modify it according to the outcome of the results of the study and the analysis of quantitative and qualitative data

The study questions

The formulation can study the problem in the form of a key question the effect: "What is the effectiveness of professional intervention of social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of the awareness of mortality risk faced by the baby boomer" ?

Branching off from this main question of the following sub-questions:

1-What is the effectiveness of intervention professional social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of awareness of the concept of mothers of child labor?

2-What is the effectiveness of intervention professional social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of the realization of the reasons driving the mothers of child labor?

3-What is the effectiveness of intervention professional social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of awareness of mortality risk faced by the baby boomer?

4-What is the effectiveness of intervention professional social service by using the general practice of social work in the development of women's participation in raising awareness of the dangers of child labor?

Methodological procedures of the study:

1-study hypotheses

The study attempts to test the following hypotheses:

The main hypothesis: There is a positive relationship statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development program of the awareness of mothers and social risks of child labor.

Emanating from this main hypothesis following sub-hypotheses:

*first sub imposition:

There is a positive correlation statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development of mothers to recognize the concept of child labor program

*second sub imposition:

There is a positive correlation statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development of mothers to recognize the driving reasons for child labor program

*Third sub imposition:

There is a positive correlation statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development of mothers to recognize the dangers of child labor program

*fourth sub imposition:

There are statistically significant positive relationship between professional intervention general practice of social service in the development of women's participation in raising awareness of the dangers of child labor program

2-The study type :

This study is to measure the return on vocational intervention in Social Work, which seeks to assess the effectiveness of professional intervention program based on the quasi-experimental design studies to determine the effectiveness of this program in the consciousness of mothers and social risks of child labor through the following four touch rocks Development :

1–recognize the mothers of the concept of child labor .

2–recognize the mothers of the reasons driving child labor .

3–mothers recognize the dangers of child labor .

4–participation of mothers in raising awareness of the dangers of child .
.labor

3–Methodology :

It is a semi–experimental method through tribal design – dimensional one group for the application of professional intervention

4–Tools of the study :

The study relied on: A measure awareness of the dangers of child labor fields of study:

A special field:

Mokattam area was chosen because it is the communities in which the .slum areas, which are spread by the phenomenon

It was chosen as the Palace of science Society Cultural Services and yours for the following reasons:

1–It offers cultural seminars and lectures to educate members and the people of Mokattam

2–they provide social assistance .

3–Among the programs and activities to provide services for women .

4-welcome the members of the Board of Directors to conduct the study and professional intervention.

:B) the human sphere)

.A group of women attending the Assembly (75) lady

:C) the time domain to the study)

The field timetable in the implementation of vocational intervention program, which implemented took three months from 15/12/2012 to 15/03/2013

results of the study:

A. There is a positive correlation statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and .development of mothers to recognize the concept of child labor program

B) there is a positive relationship statistically significant differences) between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development of mothers to recognize the driving reasons for child .labor program

C – There is a positive relationship statistically significant differences between the professional practice of public intervention for social service and development of mothers to recognize the dangers of child labor .program

D) there is a statistically significant positive relationship between) professional intervention general practice of social service in the development of women's participation in raising awareness of the .dangers of child labor program