The problem of the study and its importance:

Education is the best means of human investment, and the school is the most important forms on which the educational system depends on human development. It plays multiple roles and cooperates with a team of different specialties and professions that aim at achieving the psychological and social harmony of the students with their community.

The student deals with his colleagues and teachers, the school administration, the social worker and the rest of the school staff. In dealing with others, he is socially, psychologically and socially affected by his social relations, which must be dominated by trust, affection, mutual respect and freedom of expression, And self-confidence until this relationship is fruitful and the school achieves its objectives.

If the relationship between the student and other colleagues or teachers and others in the school worsens, it results in new phenomena that we hear about and become widespread in many schools such as insurgency, violence, hatred, and harmful behaviors that hinder the school from achieving its goal of promoting society.

In this sense, our present study focuses on the role that the social worker contributes with the school staff to strengthen social relations for students.
