Abstract:

Hardy and Robinson were dominating figures on the English and American literary scenes at the beginning of the twentieth century. Although Hardy was born thirty years before Robinson in 1840, the careers of these two poets were roughly coterminous. Hardy's first book of verse, Wessex Poems, was published in 1898, and Winter Words, his last, in 1928, the year of his death. Robinson's first volume, The Torrent and the Night Before, appeared in

Abstract:

Name: Dr. Mohamed Saad Rateb.
Lecturer in English literature, Department of English, Faculty of Arts, Fayoum University.
Title: "The Pessimistic Tone in the Poetry of Thomas Hardy and Edwin Arlington Robinson."
The Pessimistic Tone in the Poetry of Thomas Hardy and Edwin Arlington Robinson

Abstract

Hardy and Robinson were dominating figures on the English and American literary scenes at the beginning of the twentieth century. Although Hardy was born thirty years before Robinson in 1840, the careers of these two poets were roughly coterminous. Hardy's first book of verse, Wessex Poems, was published in 1898, and Winter Words, his last, in 1928, the year of his death. Robinson's first volume, The Torrent and the Night Before, appeared in