Now we work in other to papers (in the same field of the previous paper) where we have done their mathematical modeling and simulation results and we do now in their experimental verification and expected to be finished before the mid of July.