

“The Functional Performance of the Hypothesis of Conditional Meaning in Eliciting Text: A Study of the Linguistic Intuition of the Arab Speaker.”

Published in: Journal of the Faculty of Arts – Fayoum University, Vol. 16, No. 1, January 2024.

Abstract:

This research seeks to monitor the most important features of functionalism in the Arabic grammatical heritage, through the hypothesis of the meaning of the condition, which provided an interpretive framework that monitors the interaction between the surface structure and the deep structure to clarify undeclared purposes and facilitate the communication process.

The research attempted to reveal its secrets by clarifying its meaning and rooting, then monitoring its scope in usage and terminology, then it included an introduction, preface, and two sections, the first of which dealt with talking about the functional dimensions of the Hypothesis of the meaning of the condition, and the other dealing with the repercussions of the Hypothesis of the meaning of the condition on the relationships of words in the grammatical structure.

Keywords: functional performance, Hypothesis of the meaning of the condition, linguistic intuition, text interrogation.
