

(٤)

inRoles for Faculty Members in the Egyptian Universities Emerging e light of contemporary challengesht

Abstract

The study aimed to knowing the roles of faculty members in the Egyptian universities in light of its current functions, in addition to knowing the challenges and variables that led to the emergence of new roles for faculty members in the Egyptian universities, and it sought to reach the most important emerging roles practised by the faculty members in the Egyptian universities, then determining the requirements that ensure the faculty member to practise these emerging roles. The researcher used the descriptive method, and the study found that there are many challenges and variables which imposed on the faculty member the necessity of doing emerging roles in line with these challenges. These roles include: educational role, social, research, administrative, guiding and advising role, and the role of faculty member towards himself. The study concluded a number of requirements to ensure practice these new roles.