

quot;The reality of the professional practice of social workers in the way of& working with planning to raise awareness among young people about the dangers of intellectual extremism of deviant groups."

; Summary

Deviant groups pose a danger because of their intellectual and ideological dimensions, and their additional danger lies in two other dimensions, the first of which is the quantitative dimension, which is reflected in the possibility of its expansion to include large sectors of youth at the level of one country in multiple regions, and the second is the qualitative dimension which is manifested in the possibility of employing the energies of youth for purposes It does not serve as a result the aspirations they aspire to, and does not meet the minimum levels of their basic needs in their different environments, and it constitutes a source of real danger that affects the security of society and the state alike, The current study aimed to identify the reality of the professional practice of social workers in the way of community service in educating young people about the dangers of ..intellectual extremism of deviant groups.

Key words: Professional role - intellectual extremism - deviant groups