

Practicing a program within the framework of the social goals model in serving the group and raising awareness among university youth about the importance of green universities

Summary

The current study aimed to achieve a main goal, which is to test the effectiveness of a program within the framework of the social model in serving the community and educating young people about university campuses.
I applied the study to a sample of (20) students divided into two groups, one of which was control and the other was symbolic.
The study relied on a set of tools, including a measure of youth awareness of the importance of green universities, as well as an analysis of course coverage for trial membership members.
