

Morphological abstention and its impact on the breadth of meaning a deliberative study of the Zamakhshari as a model

By

Akram Mohamed Okap Mohamed

Lecturer of morphology and Arabic grammar

Faculty of Arts- Fayoum University

English Summary

The title of this research " Morphological abstention and its impact on the breadth of meaning a deliberative study of the Zamakhshari as a model "; including the introduction, preface, five sections, a conclusion and references, the introduction provided reasons for research, previous studies, and the approach taken in the study, and the components of the study.

In the preface, the research dealt with the following terms: "Adultery, breadth, and deliberation" in terms of language and terminology, and talked about the breadth and deliberation when Zamakhshari; the first section dealt with adultery in derivatives, and in the second section dealt with equation between verbs in time, The third topic was about the abstention in the number, while the fourth section talked about abstinence in sex, and the last section came to deal with injustice in the appointment, all those topics applied to the interpretation of the searchlight for Zamakhshari, and then ended the research concludes with the most important findings of the research, and the most important recommendations that Recommended by search, Finally, install the sources and references.

The research concludes with a number of results, the most important of which is that Zamakhshari was a deliberative interpreter, concerned with deliberative purposes, morphological justice that leads to the widening of meaning for deliberative purposes, the purpose of the speaker of his speech, the context of speech, the addressee and his condition, and the circumstances surrounding the speech process. However, the Arabs knew deliberation and applied it in their literature and studies before the West, although they did not look at it.