

The role of libraries and information specialist in the free access to information: case study on Fayoum University Libraries

This study aims to identify:

university libraries, especially in Fayoum University as one of the modern Egyptian state universities, which suffers from a lack 1. The importance of achieving free access to information for of financial resources, which will reflect negatively on the contents of their libraries

2. Analysis of the current situation of libraries Fayoum University to achieve free access to information

3. The challenges facing the Fayoum University Libraries in achieving free access to information

4. The role of specialist libraries Fayoum University to contribute to the free access to information the university and be incorporated into the functions assigned to