

Portable phone technology and take advantage of them in the information services provided by libraries and information centers

The current study seeks to shed light on the possible use of mobile phone technology that accompanied the huge advances in the means of communication especially wireless ones, which rely on the use and employment cellphone technology in libraries and information centers, by trying to identify the techniques used in it, the benefits that back on libraries and information centers from its use in the services they provide, and the challenges and difficulties faced by its use in it, and make some proposals to overcome it.