

Researchers attitudes towards electronic messages making available to the university Fayoum University: A Case Study

This study aims to identify and analyze the direction of researchers Fayoum University towards providing e-theses, and in order to achieve benefit from theses and Almaamh between researchers trends and address problems that may hinder the availability of the electronic protection of the rights of authors and conservation measures and retrieval theses, in addition to help the decision-maker university in identifying the characteristics of the direction of the academic community and research about the availability of e-theses, which helps to develop a plan to increase the awareness of the academic community and the research and integration in this regard to take advantage of the theses, and then the advancement of scientific research Fayoum University, and through the following :

- Identify the extent of the use of researchers at the University of Fayoum University of electronic messages
 - Identify the direction in which acceptable to researchers at the University of Fayoum to allow electronic theses
 - Analysis of the extent of the differences in the availability of electronic theses according to gender, age and degree and Colleges
- And to study the trend towards providing researchers theses Fayoum University and evaluation of this project from the perspective of researchers and analysis to address the shortcomings and emphasize the improvement of the strength