

Genetic testing of embryos and eugenics in the Egyptian family:
" "field study"*Abstract:

This study aims at discovering the effects of Genetic testing of embryos on Eugenics Egyptian family. to achieve this aim, it raises a major question: to what extent Genetic testing of embryos influence on Eugenics Egyptian family? This study comes under comparative studies that depend on critical, comparative approach to analyze the problem in question, with the help of the selected sample of fayoum families. this study has also depended on a number of statistics that analyze the data collected .The study has come to the conclusion that Genetic testing of embryos Shares in eugenics Egyptian family, by reducing the disease within the family circle, through the availability of the type of reproductive freedom for the couple, as well as give them an opportunity to make a decision selective abortion, according to the test result. Which contributed to providing a supportive environment for the family at both social and psychological dimension.